Dear Ministry Partners,

Life is full of seasons. I'm not just talking about the annual seasons of weather changes. Lyndy and I are going through a change of seasons. We have two kids in college, one still at home. Sabrina, our oldest, is getting married next month. Our season of raising children is winding down. Sabrina and Curtis are indeed going through a change of season in their young lives. As we read in Ecclesiastes, life is short, and the seasons come and go, but if we do not live in "fear of the Lord," we will not enjoy God's good gifts and all of life will be futile. Our children have certainly been wonderful gifts from God!

There are other seasons in this life. We are in the throes of the Christmas season, and as I write to you, it is -40° outside here in Alaska. Some may think that this is too difficult a circumstance to endure. Our colleagues in other parts of the world deal with different but just as arduous obstacles in daily life as they share the Gospel. You may be in a difficult season of life right now. You may be dealing with things in your life that are more formidable than Alaska's extreme weather. In this season of Advent, rest in the knowledge that Christ's coming as a babe, His work on the Cross, and His promised return, have brought us Hope, Peace, Joy, and Love!

These are the things that TMM missionaries live out and share with their neighbors as they struggle side-by-side, doing what is necessary to live in austere places. Hope is a powerful thing, Peace is rarely known, it is hard to be Joyful when life is a constant struggle, and Love is often misunderstood and abused. This world is full of sorrow; that is why the message of the Gospel is so transformative.

You play a crucial role in getting the Gospel to the far reaches of the globe. Your partnership with TMM and your missionary makes it possible for the message of Hope, Peace, Joy, and the Love that only Christ can provide to be heard in the austere places of the globe. Thank you for your prayers and thank you for your financial support.

I pray that during this season of Advent, that God will remind you of His precious gifts of Hope, Peace, Joy, and Love.

Merry Christmas from the TMM Family!

Adam White
